Open Edition is run by the Centre for open electronic publishing (Cleo – UMS 3287), a unit that brings together the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique (CNRS), the universite d'Aix-Marseille, the Ecole des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales (EHESS) and the Universite d'Avignon et des Pays de Vaucluse. Open Edition offers the academic community four international-scale publication and information platforms in the humanities and social sciences:

These four complementary platforms form a complete electronic publishing framework for academic research and communications. Open Edition is a space dedicated to highlighting research, publishing tens of thousands of academic documents on open-access. The portal's mission is to promote open-access academic electronic publishing, while respecting the publications' own economic balance. Open Edition guarantees editorial autonomy and offers perspectives for innovation adapted to digital media.
